

Tapori Children Antohomadinika for the 17th October 2015

We, the children, are the future of the nation.

For us, a sustainable future rhymes with the eradication of poverty
Parents must have a job that can meet their needs
There will be no more children who do not go to school. We can eat normally.
We must live in a real house that protects us from all risks.
Let the earth live in peace. Thus, there will be no more wars and robberies.
If all this is done, the earth will live in peace and war will disappear.
Everyone will love and help each other.

For a sustainable future based on our wishes:

If parents can always send us to school, we will work well at school.
Thus, we can find a good job, dignified and sustainable. Also, we can coexist and respect others.
It is really sad to know that there are children who cannot continue their education because parents cannot support them.
There are friends who are attracted to other things and have abandoned their studies.
Thus, they live with difficulties.

In society, exclusion appears in several forms: the skin color, poverty, orphans, those who have failed studies.

We appeal to everyone to unite our strengths and march together against exclusion.

Each individual has rights, whatever their origin, level of education and social level.

Each individual is worthy.

We would like to share with you a Malgache saying "Mpirahalahy mianala, izaho tokiny izy andriko" (Like two brother that rely on each other to jointly cope with obstacles)
